

Gin-soaked and demoralized Bar Crawl Winners In Tarentella and La Rosa finish bar-crawl in Omaha at Circo's Bar, 3231 Harney.

The F. Scott Fitzgerald Memorial Bar Crawl and General Dissipation, which was to last from July 31 until January 31, 1974 had a surprise ending Tuesday afternoon when two local luses, Magdalena La Rosa and Sergio Tarentella completed all phases of competition successfully.

The lovely couple was out in front in every one of the scheduled events. Among the contest events they so ably completed were the Charleston, the rum-running, the loose moraling, the beer-guzzling, and the gin-soaking. The most stunning and most important contest, however, was the actual bar-crawling. On August 14 Mr. Tarentella and Ms. La Rosa broke all records in this competition by hitting 800 bars and lounges in a fifteen-mile radius and consuming a total of 600 gallons of Grand Dad in an eight-hour period of time. If this was not fantastic enough, the contestants then insisted upon telling the saddest personal story they could recall. There wasn't a dry eye in the place when Mr. Tarentella related the time his own mother forced him to attend four years of misery in an Omaha Public High School. Likewise, the story Ms. La Rosa recalled about the first time she ever stayed out all night. As a matter of fact, Mr. Tarentella could not suppress tears when he recalled the first time Ms. La Rosa stayed out all night.

The typewriter ribbons, which were to be purchased with the 75 cents required for admission to the bar-crawl, did not arrive on time. A red-faced Madame Mieches presented the ribbons during the loose-morals portion of the festivities, rather than during the previously planned rum-running schedule.

As the winners of the bar-crawl, the lucky couple are entitled to a wealth of fine prizes, not the least of which includes the grand prize: yearly visits to the Mayo Clinic and semi-annual rest cures in Brazil.

Both Mr. Tarentella and Ms. La Rosa are published journalists. Mr. Tarentella once granted a free ad for his Oldsmobile in the Northwest Shopper, Omaha's finest newspaper.

Vicious Murders In Omaha

Reporter Luna Victim Citizens Are Outraged

What appears to be one of the most bizarre murder cases in history is brewing in Omaha this week. Four women are known to be dead and a single suspect is thought to be at fault in all four cases. The suspect is 49-year-old David de Sade of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The murders, which appear to have occurred over a 72-hour period, were described by police as both brutal and amateurish.

The first victim, 38-year-old Kristi Kute, was de Sade's girlfriend and a partner in his diesel fueling business. The beautiful Ms. Kute was found by authorities early Monday morning. Her tongue had been cut out and her wig and false fingernails had been removed. Police officers began to suspect foul play when it was later discovered that she had been dead for several hours.

The next victim was discovered by police authorities on mid-afternoon on Tuesday. She was another of de Sade's girlfriends and a partner in his real estate firm, "Fast" Fanny Fatz. Ms. Fatz is a well-known West Omaha socialite and had been beaten brutally about the head with an April 1973 copy of Real Estate Today. Her wig and fingernails were also stolen.

The third and fourth victims were discovered at midnight Wednesday, and appear to be victims of a perverted dual murder. Identified as former La Gateway reporter Lola Luna and her famous sidekick and part-time secretary, that tiny tot with the tapping toes, Ms. Ravinia Valley. Both Ms. Luna and Ms. Valley had been bludgeoned with insults and branded as decadent. Their wigs and false fingernails were also stolen, along with 500 pounds of Este Lauder cosmetics. The cosmetics were later reported stolen by Lola's sister, Lucky Luna.

De Sade became a suspect when a routine stripping of an abandoned 1949 Buick registered in his name revealed four women's wigs, 40 false fingernails, and 250 pounds of Este Lauder cosmetics. Police now speculate that Ms. Luna may have been wearing the remaining 250 pounds of cosmetics, as her body was discovered at a dressing table.

Mr. De Sade, a former beauty queen from Birmingham, Alabama, began having problems with the law in 1964 when he assaulted a police officer in Tulsa, Oklahoma after a peaceful demonstration of public drunkenness. All told, he has been convicted of like crimes 300 times in 48 states. He is the father of five, a Harvard graduate, and employed by the janitorial staff at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Love and Kisses

This is the last issue of the Gateway under my editorship. As a matter of fact, if I can write up a sixty-page paper before the grade deadline, it will even be my last semester at UNO.

It was with this knowledge that I decided to make the last issue a lampoon issue, a tradition most Gateway editors have followed. Not a word on the first three pages is to be taken seriously. For those readers who do not appreciate our sense of humor, there is some straight news on the last page.

Some special thanks are due to my staff, all of whom were unpaid since our meager budget did not allow for salaries other than for the editor, secretary, and adviser.

This is also the last issue under the Gateway adviser, Basil Raffety. Technically speaking, Raffety left Omaha August 13 to teach journalism for a year at Wichita State. He was the adviser for all issues except this one, which will probably become evident after you've read this issue.

Raffety deserves special recognition for his expert guidance and superior knowledge of the newspaper business. He more than fulfilled his duties as the Gateway adviser. He never played the role of censor, and his advice was always accompanied by logic and a careful consideration of all possible ramifications on any issue. Though I am sorry to see him leave the Gateway, I am happy to know that many others will benefit from the knowledge he acquired from a long and successful career as a journalist.

And then there is Mrs. Mieches. Every semester this poor woman has to put up with a change in the newspaper staff. This summer the burden was an especially heavy one, due to the rather odd and definitely schizophrenic nature of the Gateway columnist known as Lola Luna.

Mrs. Mieches has all the requirements of a good secretary. She keeps her mouth shut and she always asks "Are you here?" on all phone calls. But above and beyond all that, Mrs. Mieches is sincere and dedicated. Corny? Perhaps, but can you imagine the dedication and sincerity it takes to drive 34 blocks and climb four flights of stairs to awake an editor who slept through a copy deadline?

As for myself, my main ambition is to continue to work in the media, either broadcasting or newspapers. I freely admit that I will be one of those graduates who is educated here and goes out of state to forget. Twenty-two years in Nebraska is twenty-two years too long. There are those who say that the grass isn't greener anywhere else, but at least I can choose a state where the people are smart enough to keep rubes like Carl Curtis and Dick Proud away from the public eye. From another state I can laugh from outside instead of crying from within.

campus news and comment — by lola

Sunday, August 12, will go down in history as the season's most colorful and elegant social farce. The occasion was a patio potluck picnic sponsored by the campus chapter of Young Americans for Communist Causes (YACC). The guests of honor were none other than the stunning R.R. and the smashed Mr. B.

Several dispeptic socialist types, among them la Gateway reporter Lola Luna, were also in evidence.

The Surprise

The highlight of the evening was a fashion show preview of what R.R. and Mr. B. will be wearing during their visit to the USSR. Those boys from Ohio have class. The most striking item of Soviet finery was a Bussack print babushka that Mr. B plans to wear on the plane. Also of note was a dyed rabbit floor-length top coat that R.R. will wear on all of his official Kremlin visits. The lovely coat is equipped with a lining of batting chintz and has the very latest in false pockets. The plain floral print house-dresses that the boys plan to present to their hostesses are conservatively tasteful and rather insulting.

The Eats

The food and drink at the party was a combination of Soviet simplicity and American vulgarity. The guests first helped themselves to a tasty salad of butter-leaf lettuce and garden scallions. After the salad, fresh paper plates were brought out and the glamorous Mr. B served the main course of Tuna Vladiovostock, which was prepared from Ivan the Terrible's own recipe. Moscow Mush was also available to those so inclined, and by the time dinner was over, due of course to the heavy consumption of vodka, R.R. was so inclined that he had to be physically removed by campus security.

Friends

The guest list for this small reception numbered in the hundreds, and while it would be in extremely poor taste to mention specific persons, it should suffice to say that this reporter was previously unaware that Mr. B knew so many professional women.

Cheers dears,
LOLA

Olaf, Mr. Nice Guy

A Real Sport

A real sport is hard to find, but if you look hard enough, you might just find one like JEAN OLAF, who is one of the Midwest's most notorious soft-touches. Mr. Olaf was in Colorado last week to be cheated by bell-boys at THE BROADMOOR. When the waitresses got into the act, Mr. Olaf returned to OMAHA to declare bankruptcy.

Intrigue

Who dunnit? This man may or may not be able to answer that question. He is amateur detective LAUGHING BOY SMITH. Smith is up to some pretty bizzare things in the detective field these days. For instance, he has figured out that Queen Victoria of England was indeed Jack-The-Ripper. Not only that but he is coming to the University of Nebraska at Omaha to prove it. He will be arriving sometime in the near future, possibly around September. His visit will be sponsored by an anonymous group known far and wide for their Anti-Anglo persuasions.

Besides the Queen Victoria theory, Smith says he can prove that Richard M. Nixon has been dead for several years and is currently being impersonated by CANDY DARLING. Smith also claims to be the only person in the world outside of

Pearls

With or without his former wife Toots Tubmann, "DANCING" JACKIE SWEET makes a pretty strange pair. Last Thursday evening at THE SAVOY Mr. Sweet, wearing some of the most beautiful pearls OLDELONDON TOWNE has ever seen, showed up for an evening of over-drinking and a little flirting. Mr. Sweet has been married several times and once, almost, to well-known PARIS artist ZSA ZSA EPPLY.

Lulu... "pagan?"

Great Thou Art

As the photo indicates, popular singer LULU LICENTIOUS sometimes has trouble controlling her tongue, particularly when she has had too much to drink. One such occasion was at a party at the home of librarian JESU KRIST. Lulu is quoted as having told him off with such vulgar oaths as, "Who in hell do you think you are? God?" Krist later admitted that at the time he did think he was God and dismissed poor Lulu as "just another drunk pagan broad."

Bobbie Baby

Floating Lids

The reigning lush of the sorority set, SALLY RUSH, spoke last Wednesday evening to a group of uninterested bystanders on the corner of HERE AND THERE, two streets that exist only in her poor gin-soaked brain. The poor dear is due to be locked up, immediately after HOMECOMING: psychiatrists fear if she is slammed away before that date she may lose all sense of time and purpose.

Nobody who knows BOBBIE BABY, the boy with the floating eye-lids, ever figured he'd amount to much. And he hasn't. He does, however, have a menial position as somebody or another at the OMAHA WORLD HERALD. He found this job six months to the day after he was fired as a copy boy for the NORTHWEST SHOPPER, Omaha's finest newspaper.

Exclusive

Convicted murderer EUGENE SUZETTE, today granted la Gateway editor CHERIE KIPPLE, exclusive rights to his life story. His only specification was that the story be first printed in CHILD LIFE magazine, and should contain cartoons depicting "the good parts, like the murders." These specifications were made so that Mr. Suzette can understand it when he reads it.

Last Chance

Novelist Bette Yalife

Something of a novelty these days is a well-educated person. One such novelty is MS. BETTE YALIFE. Ms. Yalife, who was educated at some of this country's most popular and expensive schools for the criminally intelligent, was in NEW YORK CITY last week to promote her current literary offering, LAST CHANCE IN LAS VEGAS, a story of love and tremendous expense. Among her other talents, Ms. Yalife once answered the sixty-four-thousand-dollar question a total of 117 consecutive times. Unfortunately she was never a contestant.

Coupons Will Help Save Bucks

"Discover Omaha" is the name of an outstanding bargain for UNO students. Delta Sigma Pi, the professional business fraternity at UNO has produced and sold the Discover Omaha coupon book for the past several years.

This year the coupon book contains discounts at 47 businesses in Omaha. Last year's book had 36 discount coupons.

The discounts compare with those offered in similar coupon books sold in the Omaha area but with one major difference—price. Use of almost any single coupon in the book will result in the return of the initial cost of the book, $1.00. Because the discounts offered in the coupon book are basically geared to business establishments patronized by college students, it will serve as a money saver for students this fall.

Delta Sigma Pi says funds collected through sales of the coupon book are used for a worthwhile purpose. After payment of printing costs the profits are used to fund the Dr. Wayne M. Higley Scholarship Fund (up to $1,000, depending on the level of sales reached). The scholarship is awarded each semester and any student in the College of Business Administration is eligible to apply.

Remaining funds are used to finance professional and social activities of the fraternity, such as a recent trip by chartered bus to Denver during which several business firms were visited and members of the fraternity conferred with executives concerning various aspects of their business operations.

The members of the fraternity will be selling the coupon books on campus this week and throughout the fall and spring semester, however, if the opportunity to purchase a book does not arise, contact one of the following: Bill Maddocks, 558-6012; Tom Thompson, 339-4179; UNO ext. 2620; Andy Bingham, 553-7085; Dave Nelson, 391-0925; Art Anderson, 453-7238; Rusty Schwartze, 551-8699.

Graduation Is In New Art Center

Summer Commencement exercises Saturday, Aug. 18, at the University of Nebraska at Omaha will be the first such event to take place at the University since August, 1950.

Commencement exercises will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the air-conditioned Performing Arts Center. The location for the exercises has been changed from the Fieldhouse.

Dr. John P. McGovern, medical doctor and allergy specialist from Houston, Texas, will deliver the Commencement address entitled "On Day-Tight Compartments" and will be awarded the honorary doctor of science degree.

A total of 728 UNO students are candidates for degrees.

After the exercises, UNO Chancellor and Mrs. Ronald W. Roskens will greet graduates and guests in the Ballroom of the Milo Bail Student Center.

Induction Ceremony August 27

A new tradition may be started Aug. 27, the first day of fall semester classes at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

An Induction Ceremony—a University-wide event to induct freshmen into the University family and to celebrate the opening of another academic year—will begin at 10:10 a.m. in front of the UNO Administration Building.

UNO Chancellor Ronald W. Roskens will speak during the event being held for the first time at the University.

Classes will be dismissed at 10 a.m. and resume again at 11 a.m.

Fall semester classes at UNO will begin at 7:30 a.m. Aug. 27. Final registration for these classes is scheduled Aug. 22-23.

Poet Joins Staff of Writer's Workshop

A new addition to the UNO Writer's Workshop is Patrick Gray, who will begin teaching poetry this fall.

Gray, who has approximately 40 publications to his name, has been published in such periodicals as The Saturday Review, Laurel Review, and the Midwest Quarterly. He will assume the duties of both instructor and developer of the Poetry Studio of the Writer's Workshop.

Born in Illinois, Gray graduated from high school in Dumas, Texas. He attended Phillips University, where he received his A.B. in 1963. He received his M.F.A. in poetry from the University of Iowa in 1968. Between his stints in educational institutions, Gray spent three years in the Air Force, a year working for the U.S. Postal Service and the U.S. Civil Service, and three years in the U.S. Army Medical Service Corps as a personnel officer and company commander.

Gray began writing poetry while in high school in Dumas, Texas. The results of this early beginning and the twenty years of study, experimentation, and life experience that followed will be the main tools with which Mr. Gray will "help them (the apprentice poets) over the hard places . . . show them the mistakes, and help them through the process of selection to find the rudimentary location of their own voices."

Gray will teach three sections of the Poetry Studio this year, including basic poetry writing, intermediate poetry writing, and the form and theory of poetry. The Workshop courses are open to both credit students and non-credit community participants, as are the other Workshop courses in fiction and poetry. According to Gray there are still openings in the Poetry Studio and the Fiction Studio for the fall semester.

Gray says that he is looking forward to working personally with the apprentice poets on the UNO campus. "What I really enjoy is reading poetry. The more people I have to work with, the more poems I get to read."

The new instructor, who has traveled in Germany, France, Italy, Japan, and South Vietnam, says he dislikes discursive poetry, "that is, the more structured, scholastic approach to poetry." He hopes he "never eliminates the intuitive quality and force of the 'made poem.'"

"Poetry," says Gray, "is my way of defining life. It gives me the perspective of myself in the world I live in. It helps me know who I am."

Patrick Gray heads Poetry Studio at UNO Community Writer's Workshop.
